Thick Smog Persists in Beijing

Emissions restrictions fail to clear the air as Olympics near

BEIJING | The Chinese capital was shrouded in thick gray smog on Sunday, just 12 days before the opening ceremony of the Beijing Olympic Games. One expert warned that drastic measures enacted to cut vehicle and factory emissions in the city were no guarantee skies would be clear during competitions.

The pollution was among the worst seen in Beijing in the past month, despite traffic restrictions enacted a week ago that removed half of the city's cars from roads.

Visibility was a half-mile in some places. During the opening ceremony of the Athletes' Village on Sunday, the housing complex was invisible from the nearby main Olympic Green.

"No, it doesn't really look so good, but ... yesterday was better," said Gunilla Lindberg, an International Olympic Committee vice president from Sweden who is staying in the Athletes' Village. "The day I arrived, Tuesday, was awful."

The city's notoriously polluted air is one of the biggest questions hanging over the games, which begin on Aug. 8. On Sunday, temperatures of about 90 degrees, with 70 percent humidity and low winds, created a mix of harmful chemicals, particulate matter and water vapor.

Athletes have been trickling into Beijing and were expected to begin arriving in large numbers this week — though some were headed to South Korea, Japan and other places to avoid Beijing's air for as long as possible. ANITA CHANG (AP)

You May Be a Lawn Mower, but I Am an Intoxicated Redneck

A Milwaukee man was accused of shooting his lawn mower because it wouldn't start. Keith Walendowski, 56, was charged with felony possession of a short-barreled shotgun or rifle and misdemeanor disorderly conduct while armed. Walendowski said he was angry because his Lawn Boy wouldn't start Wednesday morning. He told police, "I can do that. It's my lawn mower and my yard, so I can shoot it if I want." A woman who lives at Walendowski's house said he was intoxicated. Walendowski could face a fine of up to $11,000 and six years in prison if convicted. (AP)

She Says Perfect; We Say Extra-Creepy

Jeff Hornagold loved being a UPS driver. So, when the suburban Chicago man died recently of lung cancer, longtime co-worker Michael McGowan agreed to take him on one last delivery. McGowan transported Hornagold's body from Davenport Family Funeral Home to Saturday's funeral services in his UPS truck. McGowan says he plans to keep a picture of Hornagold in his truck until he retires so that they can keep riding together. Hornagold was a UPS driver for 20 years, and his wife, Judy Hornagold, described him as "just the happiest UPS man alive." She says the special delivery was the perfect tribute. (AP)

Authorities say a Levy County, Fla., man accidentally shot his wife while trying to hit a fox that had attacked her. The couple told deputies they had spotted an animal in their yard Friday morning and went outside to see what it was. The fox bit the woman on the left leg and wouldn't let go, so she told her husband to get a gun. The man fired a .22-caliber rifle seven times, killing the animal but also hitting his wife in the lower right leg. The woman was taken to a nearby hospital for treatment. (AP)

Rivals Battle for Advantage on Iraq

McCain, Obama use talk show appearances to debate war policies

POLITICS | In dueling appearances on the Sunday talk shows, Sens. John McCain and Barack Obama attacked the other's foreign policy and refused to reconsider publicly their earlier positions.

McCain reiterated his view that Obama's policy of favoring a withdrawal of U.S. troops from Iraq within two years puts politics before prudent policy.

"Senator Obama doesn't understand. He doesn't understand what's at stake here, and he chose to take a political path that would have helped him get the nomination of his party," McCain said on ABC's "This Week."

McCain

Referring to his call last year to increase the number of troops in Iraq, McCain said, "I took a path that I knew was unpopular because I knew we had to win in Iraq. And we are winning in Iraq. And if we'd have done what Senator Obama wanted done, it would have been chaos, genocide, increased Iranian influence, perhaps al-Qaeda establishing a base again."

Obama acknowledged that violence has diminished in Iraq since the troop buildup began, but he added that it is impossible to know whether that country would be in better shape today if the United States had followed his call to start removing troops.

On NBC's "Meet the Press," Obama said McCain has failed to ask whether it was a smart decision to go into Iraq and whether a timeline for withdrawal encourages Iraqi factions to cooperate.

"John McCain's essential focus has been on the tactical issue of sending more troops. ... He's made his entire approach to foreign policy rest on his support of Bush's decision to send more troops in," Obama said. ZACHARY A. GOLDFARB (THE WASHINGTON POST)

3 Missing, 4 Dead in N.Y. Waters

NEW YORK | Rescuers suspended their search Sunday for a 10-year-old girl in the water off Coney Island, one of three swimmers still missing from powerful ocean currents at New York City and Long Island beaches over the weekend. Four other victims drowned at beaches Friday and Saturday, authorities said.

"There are strong currents in these waters," said Coast Guard Petty Officer 3rd Class Annie Berlin. "It's important for everybody who goes swimming out there to remember that."

The 10-year-old girl, Akira Johnson, was pulled under by currents while swimming Saturday.

With a steady punch of stronger rip currents possible over the weekend, "only experienced surf swimmers should enter the waters," said National Weather Service meteorologist Jim Connolly. (AP)

KNOXVILLE, TENN. | A gunman opened fire at a church youth performance Sunday, injuring eight people and killing a man who witnesses called a hero for shielding others from a shotgun blast.

Members of the Tennessee Valley Unitarian Universalist Church said they dove under pews or ran from the building when the shooting started. The gunman was tackled by congregants and eventually taken into police custody.

Police Say Man Killed Parents With Garden Hoe

LINCOLN, R.I. | Authorities charged a man Sunday with killing his parents with a garden hoe and burying their bodies in their backyard cesspool. James A. Soares, 24, did not enter a plea when prosecutors arraigned him at the state prison barracks in Lincoln with two counts of murder in the deaths of James A. Soares Sr., 60, and Marian Soares, 53.

Police would not comment on a motive but said they believe Soares attacked and killed his parents July 9 with a heavy digging tool. "It's incomprehensible to think that someone could kill someone that brought them into the world," police Maj. Steven O'Donnell said. (AP)

Retail Feels Price Pressure

As manufacturers increase their prices, stores face a dilemma

NEW YORK | American consumers will soon be facing more price increases — but at the store, not the pump.

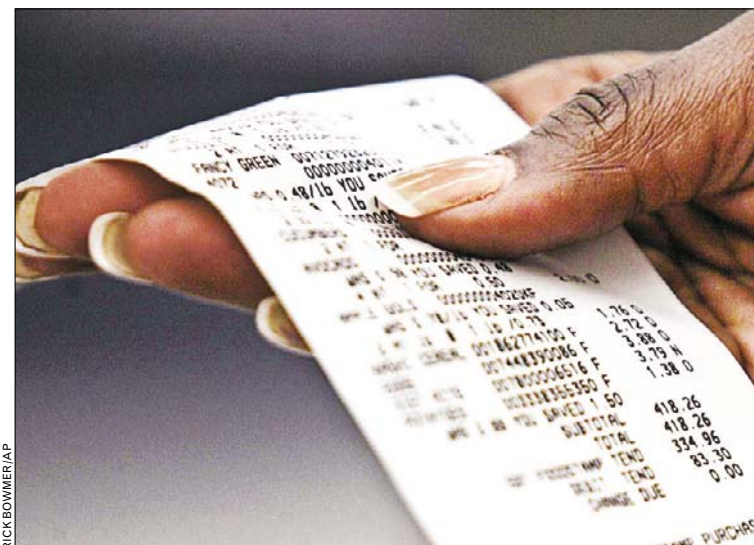

Most inflation this year has come from food and fuel, as retailers resisted passing along the higher prices manufacturers charged them, but coming increases from companies such as Johnson & Johnson and Hasbro may leave them with no choice.

"While these increases have not, for the most part, been passed on at the retail level, it is inevitable that they will be at some point," said Dean Baker, co-director of the Center for Economic and Policy Research.

The price increases leave retailers in a bind: They can keep prices steady and cut profit margins, or they can raise prices and risk losing sales.

Wal-Mart Stores has been in the lead of aggressively keeping prices down, and it has pressured its competitors to do the same.

"We have seen inflation, and we have passed some of that through," said John Simley, a Wal-Mart spokesman. "We have, wherever possible, worked with our suppliers to reduce the inflationary impact as much as possible."

Costco Wholesale Corp. says it won't swallow price increases from suppliers on key items but would postpone passing them along to consumers, if only for a few weeks, because it wants to be the last retailer to raise prices.

"I think the consumer is just starting to see, not only with us, rising commodity costs and rising general merchandise costs in a much bigger way than they've seen, other than with gasoline itself," Richard Galanti, Costco's chief financial officer, said on Wednesday. ELLEN SIMON (AP)

Suicide Hot Line Effective

Officials: Veterans phone service averted 1,221 suicides in a year

WASHINGTON | More than 22,000 U.S. veterans have sought help from a special suicide hot line in its first year, and 1,221 suicides have been averted, the government says.

According to a recent RAND Corp. study, roughly one in five soldiers returning from Iraq and Afghanistan displays symptoms of post-traumatic stress disorder, putting them at a higher risk for suicide. Researchers at Portland State University found that male veterans are twice as likely to commit suicide than men who are not veterans.

The VA teamed up with the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration to launch the hot line last July after years of criticism that the VA was not doing enough to help wounded soldiers returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. In April, two veterans groups sued the VA, citing long delays for processing applications and other problems in treatment for veterans at risk for suicide. The department has spent $2.9 million on the hot line thus far.

The hot line receives up to 250 calls per day — double the average number calling when it began. Kemp said callers are divided evenly between veterans from the Iraq, Afghanistan and Vietnam wars. Richard McKeon, public health adviser for SAMHSA, said 10 to 20 of the 1,575 calls received each week have to be rerouted to high-volume backup call centers.

The veterans hot line received 55,000 callers in its first year, including 22,000 veterans as well as people concerned about them, according to figures released Monday. KATHARINE EUPHRAT (AP)

Twin Explosions Kill 13 in Istanbul

70 people are injured in 'terror attack' on crowded city square

ISTANBUL, TURKEY | Two bombs exploded minutes apart in an Istanbul square packed with people Sunday night, killing 13 and injuring about 70 in what the city governor said was a terror attack.

Many people were injured in the second blast after they rushed to the area to help the casualties of the first explosion in the working class Gungoren neighborhood, witnesses said. The blasts were about 10 minutes apart.

"There is no doubt that this is a terror attack," Gov. Muammer Guler told reporters. "The fact that there was a crowd in the area has increased the number of casualties," he added.

The governor said police were investigating who was behind the blasts.

CNN-Turk television, citing security sources, said police suspect Kurdish rebels may be responsible for the attack. It said intelligence reports had suggested the rebels were planning a bombing campaign in Turkish cities.

However, officials did not accuse any specific group.

Kurdish, leftist and Islamic militants are active in Istanbul and have carried out past bombings in the city. On July 9, gunmen believed to be inspired by al-Qaeda opened fire on police guarding the U.S. consulate in Istanbul, killing three officers. Three attackers also died in a shootout with police. C. # Islamic Group Claims Indian Blasts

E-mail warned of series of attacks that killed 45 people in W. India

AHMADABAD, INDIA | An obscure Islamic group claimed responsibility for a series of synchronized explosions that killed at least 45 people in western India, warning of "the terror of Death" in an e-mail sent to several television stations minutes before the blasts.

An unexploded bomb was found and defused early Sunday, said the city's police commissioner, O.P. Mathur. He said police had detained 30 people.

"In the name of Allah the Indian Mujahideen strike again! Do whatever you can, within 5 minutes from now, feel the terror of Death!" said an e-mail from the group.

The e-mail's subject line said: "Await 5 minutes for the revenge of Gujarat," an apparent reference to 2002 riots in the western state that killed 1,000 people, mostly Muslims.

Ahmadabad was the scene of much of the 2002 violence.

Saturday's e-mail, sent from a Yahoo account and written in English, was made available to The Associated Press by one of the TV stations that received the warning.

The e-mail was sent by a group calling itself Indian Mujahideen, which was unknown before May, when it said it was behind bombings in Jaipur that killed 61 people.

State government spokesman Jaynarayan Vyas said 45 people were killed and 161 were wounded when at least 16 bombs went off Saturday evening in several crowded neighborhoods. The attack came a day after seven smaller blasts killed two people in Bangalore.

Cities across the country were put on alert Sunday, and security was stepped up at markets, hospitals, airports and train stations.

Long-ruling leader claims landslide victory in parliamentary poll

PHNOM PENH, CAMBODIA | Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen's ruling party claimed it had sealed a landslide victory in parliamentary elections Sunday that were expected to usher in a new term for the former Khmer Rouge soldier who has ruled for 23 years.

Hun Sen's popularity at the polls was buoyed by a surge of nationalism amid a tense border dispute with neighboring Thailand.

Iraqi Gunmen Kill 7 Shiite Pilgrims

Worshippers traveling to Baghdad are fatally shot in Sunni town

BAGHDAD | Seven Shiite pilgrims traveling to a shrine in Baghdad were fatally shot in an ambush in a Sunni town south of the capital Sunday as authorities tightened security ahead of a major religious festival that is expected to draw tens of thousands of worshippers.

Shiite pilgrims have frequently been targeted by car bombs and gunmen during years of sectarian warfare. In 2005, at least 1,000 people also were killed in a bridge stampede caused by rumors of a suicide bomber in Baghdad during the Kazimiyah pilgrimage.

The gunmen were hiding on the side of the road when they opened fire Sunday, killing the seven young men near Madain, about 14 miles southeast of Baghdad, said a police officer familiar with the incident.

An official at the Baghdad hospital where the bodies were taken confirmed the victims were killed by gunfire, but both spoke on condition of anonymity because they weren't authorized to release the information.

Southwest Flight Returns To BWI Due to Cockpit Smoke

A Southwest Airlines spokeswoman says smoke from a faulty cockpit fan prompted a flight to return to Baltimore-Washington International Thurgood Marshall Airport shortly after takeoff Sunday. Southwest officials says the fan was changed after landing, and the flight to Norfolk, Va. was expected to take off again later Sunday afternoon. BWI officials originally said the plane returned due to a cockpit fire but later confirmed smoke from a cockpit fan prompted the return of the plane, which landed without incident. (AP)

D.C. Struggles With Summer Jobs

Student program is plagued with payroll problems, low morale

City Administrator Dan Tangherlini arrived at work a week ago Friday and walked into chaos. It was payday for the city's summer jobs program, and hundreds of student workers had been underpaid or not paid at all. As the day wore on, hundreds became thousands.

It was a frustrating moment for city officials who had touted a new debit card that was meant to help end payroll issues, a problem that has plagued the jobs program that D.C. Council member Marion Barry, D-Ward 8, created as mayor in 1979.

Tangherlini went to the headquarters that Friday, again the next day and several times last week as the department worked to correct the problems. Mayor Adrian M. Fenty ambitiously expanded the program, swelling the ranks from 12,629 last year to 19,000 this summer, making it one of the largest of its kind in the country. But the big numbers have brought big problems for an administration that prides itself on take-charge efficiency.

Keenly aware of the challenges, the city fired its program administrator July 16, two days before the payday glitches. Just as challenging, though, is figuring out how to find meaningful work experiences for all of the young workers.

There are programs that have been problematic, such as the Washington East of the River Academy in Anacostia, where logistical hurdles delayed it from getting underway for four weeks, while students sat in an auditorium and then in classrooms with little to do. The academy is supposed to offer arts programs to students.

"We just go to a classroom and sit all day," was how one 17-year-old described it in an interview. "We can't even talk to each other."

Tangherlini said Friday that he had "moved to close that site" and that all the students would be doing other jobs by the next day.

WASHINGTON | ACTIVISTS RALLY FOR HOMELESS RIGHTS

HELP THE HOMELESS: About 100 supporters of homeless rights walked to the home of D.C. Council member Tommy Wells, D-Ward 6, at 311 Fourth St. SE Sunday to ask him why the Franklin Homeless Shelter at 13th and K streets NW is closing.

U.Va. Takes Common Application

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA. | The University of Virginia has joined a pool of nearly 350 colleges that accept a standardized college application form.

U.Va., the University of Mary Washington, and the College of William and Mary are the three public colleges in Virginia using the Common Application.

U.Va. applicants started using the online form July 1. They're still required to fill out a supplemental application that includes essay questions specific to U.Va.

It's too early to tell how the switch will affect the number of university applicants, according to Dean of Admission John Blackburn.

Some schools see an increase after starting to use the Common Application, while others seem to experience little or no change.

The switch to the Common Application is just one of three major changes to U.Va.'s admissions process this year, Associate Dean of Admission Gregory Roberts said in a release. For the first time, all applications will be read online and not printed out.

Common Application has fielded applications for private schools since 1975 and began taking them for public schools in 2001. (AP)

Fairfax County Police Arrest Man in Rent Scam Case

FAIRFAX, VA. | Fairfax County police say they have arrested a man suspected of scamming prospective renters.

Police say 31-year-old Richard Hiner of Catlett, Va., advertised rental homes on Craigslist. After giving potential tenants tours of properties, he allegedly had them sign a rental contract and provide payment toward the rent.

Officials say victims later found out Hiner was not affiliated with the properties, which were really owned by banks and were in foreclosure.

Police say four such incidents occurred between July 13 and July 18.

Detectives posing as potential renters responded to an online listing for a rental home, and arrested Hiner when he arrived for their appointment on Thursday.

Hiner was charged with four counts of grand larceny by false pretense and three counts of burglary. (AP)

Get Yourself to Work

Web maps for biking and walking grow as commuters ditch cars

ROUTES | As more commuters consider ditching their cars to save money on gas, Internet mapping services, cities and community groups are being pushed to lay out the best routes for biking and walking — just like drivers have found online for years.

Technical and practical roadblocks stand between such a network's becoming ubiquitous, but there are signs of progress in this world of $4-a-gallon gas.

Google Inc. just launched a walking-directions service. MapQuest is reporting more use of its "avoid highways" function and offering a walking-directions service on cell phones. And some cities have developed detailed online maps to help walkers, bikers and transit riders find the fastest routes.

The first challenge: how to account for factors that make bicycle and walking routes different from driving paths.

Pedestrians need sidewalks but don't have to abide by one-way streets. Walkers and bikers can cut through paths or trails not meant for cars, but they must avoid highways. Bikers, unlike walkers, need to think about whether a road is paved and are prohibited from sidewalks in some cities.

All these variables mean the fastest, easiest route for a driver may not be the same as for someone on foot or riding a bike. And developing a comprehensive system for non-drivers requires a tricky step: collecting huge volumes of local metadata and getting them on national databases used by mapping services.

"In the U.S., we are primarily a driving country or have been for a very, very long time," said Christian Dwyer, MapQuest's senior vice president and general manager.

Advocates believe making walking and biking directions available on the Internet could help change that culture, especially in urban areas.

The technical challenge involves overlaying detailed information for walkers and bikers onto existing online maps, and then applying it to algorithms used to lay out the quickest routes. If some path, walkway or shortcut is on a map but not accounted for in the algorithm, it may be useless.

"There are some horror stories of the past of people being routed onto the Appalachian Trail or a couple driving off the ferry dock," said Jay Benson, vice president of global strategic planning for Tele Atlas, an international mapping company that supplies data to Google, MapQuest and others.

But if these tweaks are done right, the Internet mapping services could tell a biker to use, say, a river-side trail to avoid congestion, while showing a walker to dart through a parking lot to cut off a corner — or at the very least to head against car traffic on one-way streets.

Improve Depressive Symptoms Faster?

Several medications are effective for treating depression; however, they take weeks or months to achieve their full effects. NIMH is studying whether a drug can cause a rapid antidepressant effect in patients with bipolar or unipolar depression. Understanding how this works may help us design better antidepressants. The study will also see if the rapid antidepressant effects can be sustained. The study is conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, MD.

Anchors Return to Redskins' O-Line

Jansen, Thomas take spots on the right side after a year of injuries

REDSKINS | Washington Redskins center Casey Rabach likes what he sees when he lines up and glances to the right.

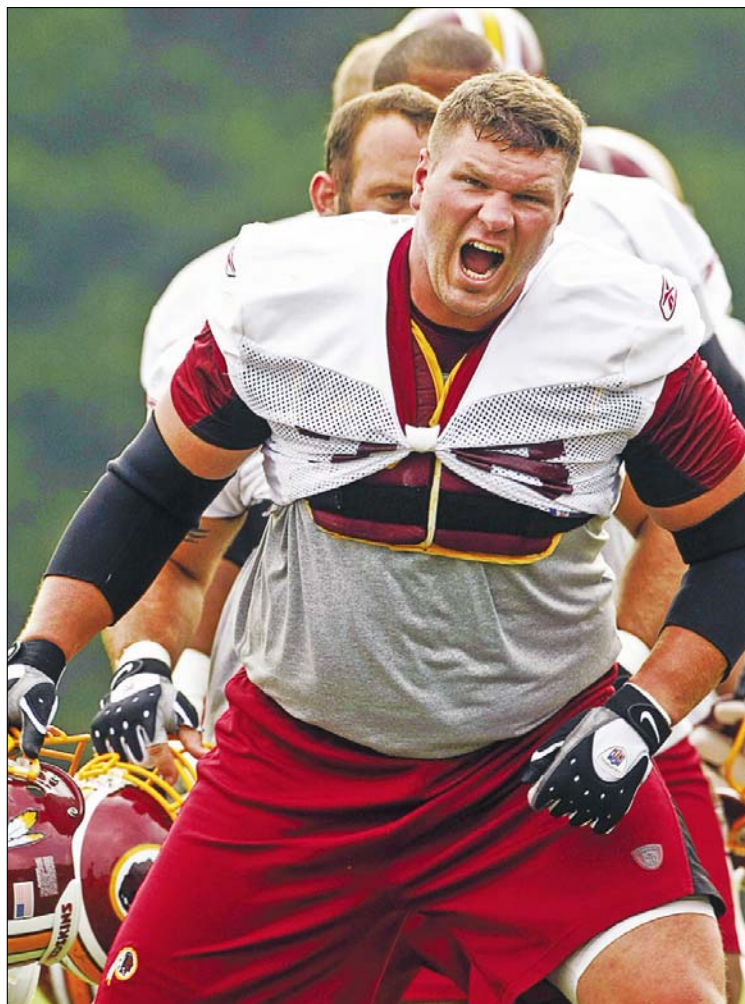

Next to Rabach in this training camp are guard Randy Thomas and tackle Jon Jansen, back after each missed most of last season to injuries.

"It's a reassurance to look over there and see those two on my right side," Rabach said. "They bring a different element to the game: their experience, their tenacity, their toughness and their smartness."

Jansen and Thomas have anchored the right side of the Redskins' line since 2003. Jansen had a season-ending ankle injury in last year's opener, and Thomas missed 13 games with a triceps injury. Both are back in place this training camp.

"It's such a good feeling, because it's a close-knit group," Jansen said. "Randy and I have played together for a long time, and whether I'm out or he's out or we're both out, it's never quite the same without him in there."

Jansen appears to be slightly fur-

Jon Jansen leads the Redskins' offensive line in drills Sunday at training camp. The right tackle is healthy after missing most of last season due to an ankle injury.

REDSKINS NOTES

News from Sunday's activities at Redskins Park:

- DT Anthony Montgomery said he expects to be out two to four weeks after breaking a bone in his hand during Saturday's scrimmage. Montgomery will have surgery Monday.
- The Redskins signed DT Zarnell Fitch and G Fred Matua, and waived DE J.T. Mapu and G Kerry Brown on Sunday.
- RB Eric Shelton did not practice due to a shoulder stinger.

ther along than Thomas. Coach Jim Zorn said Thomas became fatigued in Saturday's scrimmage.

Just being back is a relief to Thomas.

"It was miserable," he said. "I never want to do that. In my profession, you get paid to play. Not to get out on that field, you've almost got to show what you can do again."

The only missing piece of the offensive line has been left tackle Chris Samuels, who has been held out of contact drills after elbow surgery. Samuels said he expects to test the elbow early this week.

"Believe me, we'll welcome him with open arms," Thomas said. (AP)

Johnson Scores Win at Indy Race Marred by Tire Trouble

Jimmie Johnson celebrated his second victory at Indianapolis Motor Speedway with a burnout on Sunday. Appropriately, one of his tires exploded. Manny Ramirez would agree to a trade that would make both him and the Boston Red Sox happy but said he doesn't think the team will deal him. Four days before the non-waiver trading deadline, Ramirez said Sunday, "I'm tired of them. They're tired of me." The Red Sox have a $20 million option on him for next year. He spoke for less than two minutes in Boston's clubhouse before the game with the New York Yankees. (AP)

Hester returned to camp Friday, saying there was progress in the negotiations. Hester's previous contract was for $445,000 for the 2008 season. (AP)

At Request of Packers, Favre Is a No-Show

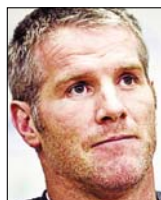

Quarterback doesn't report to camp, says he is open to any trade

NFL | Brett Favre didn't report to the Green Bay Packers' training camp Sunday, temporarily easing tensions in the three-time MVP's ongoing standoff with the team.

Packers spokesman Jeff Blumb confirmed Sunday that Favre did not report to camp with Packers players Sunday morning.

Favre told Si.com that Packers general manager Ted Thompson had asked him for "a couple of days" to resolve the situation. "I agreed to do that," Favre told the site. "I don't want to be a distraction to the Packers, and I hope in the next few days we can come to an agreement that would allow me to continue playing football."

That agreement, presumably, would be a trade. The New York Jets and Tampa Bay Buccaneers have emerged as two potential trade partners for the Packers, and Favre told Si.com that he would consider a trade to any team. CHRIS JENKINS (AP)

Sastre Wins Tour Tainted by Drugs

Rider is third straight Spaniard to conquer cycling's premier event

CYCLING | Spain's Carlos Sastre won the Tour de France on Sunday, with cycling's showpiece event again unable to escape the shadow of doping. Minutes after the victory, it was announced a rider from Kazakhstan used a banned stimulant.

Dmitriy Fofonov tested positive for a "very heavy dose" of heptaminol after Thursday's 18th stage, said Pierre Bordry, the head of France's anti-doping agency. Fofonov was immediately fired by his Credit Agricole team.

"These guys are crazy, and the sooner they start learning, the better," International Cycling Union chief Pat McQuaid said by phone.

Carlos Sastre waves a Spanish flag along the Champs-Élysées after winning the 2008 Tour de France on Sunday. His 58-second win was the second-tightest ever.

"You can never rule out at the Tour de France — the biggest event of the year — that these guys are going to take risks."

The doping bust was the fourth at this Tour, after three other riders tested positive for the banned blood booster EPO. News of Fofonov's failed test came while some teams were riding farewell laps on the Champs-Élysées.

Fofonov finished in 19th place in the Tour, 28 minutes, 31 seconds after Sastre.

Sastre held his narrow lead over Cadel Evans of Australia, finishing seven seconds behind his main rival for a 58-second victory. It was the second-tightest podium finish in the 105-year-old race.

The 33-year-old Sastre is the third straight Spaniard to win the Tour. "It's very moving," he said. (AP)

Red-Hot Jones, Sun Scorch the Reeling Mystics

MYSTICS | Asjha Jones scored 27 points to lead the Connecticut Sun to an 82-60 victory over the Washington Mystics on Sunday.

Jones, who began her WNBA career six years ago in Washington, made 10 of 16 shots and seven of eight free throws to help Connecticut win its third straight.

Taj McWilliams-Franklin led Washington with 11 points and six rebounds.

Reserve forward Crystal Langhorne added 10 points on 5-of-5 shooting.

The Mystics lost for the second time in four games since interim coach Jessie Kenlaw replaced Tree Rollins, who was fired on July 19, the day after a 99-62 home loss to Detroit. (AP)

Bergmann's bad luck holds as Washington is blanked for 15th time

NATIONALS | Clayton Kershaw out-pitched Jason Bergmann for his first major league victory and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Washington Nationals 2-0 on Sunday.

In a matchup of pitchers who were winless in their previous 20 starts combined, Kershaw (1-3) prevailed, allowing four hits in six-plus innings less than 24 hours after Derek Lowe held the lowest-scoring team in the majors to one hit over eight innings.

The 20-year-old left-hander was winless in his first nine big league starts with a 5.18 ERA.

The Nationals, whose 38-68 record is the worst in baseball, have dropped 15 of their last 19 overall and nine straight at Dodger Stadium since May 4, 2005.

Bergmann (1-8) allowed two runs and six hits over six innings, struck out five and walked three. The right-hander is 0-7 with a 3.24 ERA in 12 starts since beating the New York Mets 7-0 on May 15 at Shea Stadium with seven innings of three-hit ball. He has lost his last six starts on the road.

Dodgers first baseman James Loney led off the second inning with his ninth homer, and catcher Russell Martin added a two-out RBI single in the fifth.

Felipe Lopez started at short-stop for the second consecutive time in place of All-Star Cristian Guzman, who was sidelined because of a bruised left thumb.

The Nationals, who have scored a major league-low 388 runs, were undermined by a pair of unconventional double plays en route to their 15th shutout this season and third in four games. (AP)

Santana Tosses A Gem to Lead Mets Past Cards

BASEBALL | Johan Santana effortlessly tossed his seventh complete game, getting two-run homers from Fernando Tatis and Ramon Castro as New York pounded Kyle Lohse and the Cardinals 9-1 to wrap up another successful homestand.

"We needed that big," Mets manager Jerry Manuel said. "He was very adamant about going back out. He really wanted the complete game."

Santana (9-7) allowed six hits and a walk in winning for just the second time since June 1.

The NL East-leading Mets have won 11 of 13 at home and 15 of 19 overall. (AP)

BASEBALL (7 P.M. ON ESPN) The AL West-leading Los Angeles Angels try to become just the second team to beat Boston Red Sox ace Daisuke Matsuzaka (11-1, 2.63 ERA) this season.

BASEBALL (7 P.M. ON MASN) The Baltimore Orioles travel to the Bronx to face the New York Yankees in the first game of the Orioles' second-to-last series ever at Yankee Stadium.

Orioles End Sunday Losing Streak

ORIOLES | The Baltimore Orioles ended their run of 15 straight losses in Sunday games, defeating the Los Angeles Angels 5-2 behind a sharp pitching performance by Garrett Olson.

Olson (7-5) allowed two runs and seven hits in six-plus innings, breaking a run of eight games in which an Orioles starter failed to get through the sixth. Olson gave up 23 runs in his previous four starts, a stretch that raised his ERA from 4.76 to 6.11.

The rookie's first win since June 28 helped the Orioles end a five-game losing streak.

Just as important, it provided Baltimore with its first win on Sunday since April 6 against Seattle.

Since that game, the Orioles were outscored by a combined 83-43 in compiling the longest skid on one day of the week since Arizona dropped 15 successive Saturday games in 2004.

Backup catcher Guillermo Quiroz went 3-for-4 with three RBI for the Orioles, who avoided their first home sweep of the season. (AP)

RECORD OBLITERATOR: Not only was "The Dark Knight" No. 1 at the box office for the second weekend in a row, but it has crossed the $300 million mark in 10 days. The previous record-holder was "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest," which took 16 days to make that amount.

PERSONALITY TRANSPLANT: Rachel Weisz's Evy was the epitome of glamor, but expect Bello's to be humorous and edgier.

The Replacement

Maria Bello fills some glamorous shoes in the new 'Mummy'

CHALLENGE | It's never easy for an actor to step into a role previously played by or closely associated with another actor. For Maria Bello, replacing Rachel Weisz as erudite tomb raider Evelyn "Evy" O'Connell in the third installment of Universal's hit "Mummy" franchise was, indeed, something she thought about carefully before saying yes.

"Rachel is such a brilliant ingenue in those [previous two] films, and I knew I could never fill her shoes," Bello says. "So, we decided to make a new pair of shoes."

Weisz reportedly opted not to return because she had a newborn at home and didn't want to travel with an infant to China, where part of the film was shot. The 37-year-old actress also wasn't keen about playing the mother of an adult son in "The Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor," opening Friday.

For Bello, 41, the appeal of starring in a big-budget adventure ultimately outweighed any concerns she had about being compared to the British actress. She had dreamed of playing a swashbuckling action hero for as long as she could remember.

"Growing up, I wanted to be Indiana Jones," she says with a laugh.

If Weisz brought an Audrey Hepburn-style glamour to the role of Evelyn O'Connell, the archaeologist wife of explorer Rick O'Connell — played by a returning Brendan Fraser — Bello brings a level of experience, sophistication and humor to the role, not unlike another Hepburn: Katharine.

Director Rob Cohen told Bello he wanted her to bring "an American sensibility within this English-woman."

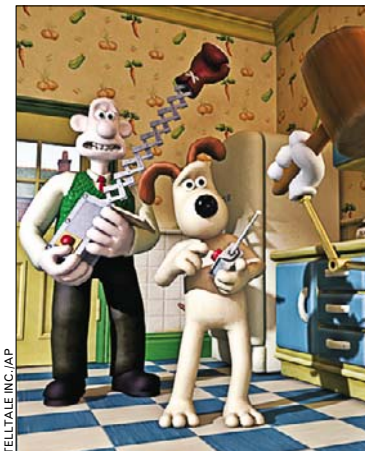

The Pennsylvania-born actress adopted a British accent, dyed her golden locks brown and learned how to stage-fight convincingly. She got a bit banged up while filming her action sequences, but it was worth it, Bello insists.

"I did have one accident where I was shooting my Winchester in the rotunda and a cartridge came up and hit me below the eye," she says. "If it had been a quarter-inch higher, I would've been in real trouble."

"I felt like ... I was a 12-year-old boy at the playground," she says, smiling. "I took gun lessons and sword-fighting for two months. I did 90 percent of my own stunts because I had great trainers."

Fraser describes his new leading lady as "wonderful."

"I promise you, Maria was enthusiasm bottled," he says. "It's been seven years since the second 'Mummy' film, so it gives you liberty to have the roles recast." ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Control the schemes of 'Wallace & Gromit' in a new video game

VIDEO GAME | "Wallace & Gromit" are going on a new adventure.

Telltale Games is creating an episodic video game based on Aardman Animations' Oscar-winning animated film series titled "Wallace & Gromit's Grand Adventures." The popular stop-motion clay animated franchise stars the harebrained inventor Wallace (voiced by Peter Sallis) and his long-suffering loyal pooch, Gromit.

"Grand Adventures" will allow gamers to play as both Wallace and Gromit, engaging in zany entrepreneurial schemes and tinkering with kooky contraptions. The game will feature more physical and situation-based comedy and will likely follow the distribution model of Telltale's episodic video game series "Sam & Max."

Aardman Animations has produced three Academy Award-winning "Wallace & Gromit" animated short films as well as the feature film "The Curse of The Were-Rabbit," which won an animated film Oscar in 2006. "A Matter of Loaf and Death," a fourth animated short starring the twosome, is currently in production. DERRIK J. LANG (AP)

The 'Robot Chicken' version of 'Star Wars' can now be yours

CLUCK! | It turns out Seth Green has the job you always wanted.

He has free rein to play with toys for a living. He makes silly voices. He mocks celebrities, world leaders and even biblical figures.

And he earns good money and fans' adoration.

"Robot Chicken," of course, isn't the only item on Green's to-do list. It also includes TV and movie appearances, plus the couple of hours per month he spends voicing Chris Griffin on "Family Guy."

Since childhood Green, 34, has traveled a roundabout career path, leading to lots of different cool jobs. But "Robot Chicken," a kookie stop-motion-animated sketch-comedy, has blossomed from a side venture to a big part of Green's life as a showcase for his myriad skills.

A year ago, its half-hour "Star Wars" spoof aired. Now this twist-ed yet startlingly faithful homage is out on DVD, just days after being nominated for an Emmy.

"We love to emphasize the mundane in the extraordinary," he says, "and 'Star Wars' was perfect for that. You have something that's intergalactic, and yet there's got to be some textural machinations of day-to-day business: How can you run an industry that large without paperwork? And where are the bathrooms?" FRAZIER MOORE (AP)

Caffeine Queen

Michael Weissman's 'God in a Cup' is a perky ode to coffee

BEANS | Readers who share author Michael Weissman's intense interest in all facets of gourmet coffee will love "God in a Cup: The Obsessive Quest for the Perfect Coffee."

The book digs deep into the conditions in which coffee is grown and the manner in which it is sold to coffee nerds in the first world. (The title, "God in a Cup," comes from overwrought praise given to Panamanian specialty coffee Hacienda La Esmeralda Special.)

But readers who have only a passing interest in coffee — as in, they drink it and forget about it — might find themselves drowned in Weissman's flood of caffeinated enthusiasm for her subject.

"God in a Cup" exhaustively covers the breeding, growing, harvesting, preparing, roasting, storing, brewing and selling of coffee. The book also is a love letter to charismatic coffee guys who run boutique cafes or travel the world in search of the next great harvest. A disproportionate number of these guys have, say, stunning blue eyes, firm features, a bad-boy mystique and a love of adventure and der-ring-do.

"God in a Cup" is suited only for the most die-hard coffee fans among us.

Weissman also spends a lot of her book describing conditions at coffee's points of origin. These travels throughout the African and Latin American countryside are interesting and offer Weissman's thoughts on development issues. She sees Ethiopia as a banquet of genetic riches for coffee lovers and suggests that infinite varieties of the little bean may still await discovery.

The author also takes the readers into a number of tasting competitions of elite coffees and into the hard, uncertain work of all kinds of farmers in Africa and Latin America who grow the beans eventually consumed in coffeehouses thousands of miles away.

Express chatted with Weissman about Ritalin, cooperative farming, deforestation and Starbucks. To read the conversation, visit us online at Expressnightout.com. She'll discuss her work tonight at Politics & Prose.

Flicker of A Decade Gone By

Candlebox re-emerges with an album of pure '90s nostalgia

MUSIC | Candlebox never found a true place among the pantheon of '90s bands. Unfairly lumped in with the grunge crowd (maybe because it is from Seattle), it eventually vanished after being shunned for its hard blues and classic rock approach.

Ten years after its last release, Candlebox returns with three of its four founding members in tow on "Into the Sun."

WRONG TITLE: From the look of the cover, "Into the Night" might have been better.

Fans of the band's smash hits such as "You" and "Far Behind" — which remain in heavy rotation on rock radio — are again likely to be enthralled with Kevin Martin's soaring vocals and Peter Klett's chugging riffs and melodic psychedelia-infused leads.

The band shows it means business with aggressive riffs and thunderous drums on "Stand" and "How Does It Feel," offers the funky rock of "... Brewin" and adds a touch of trippy blues to "Surrendering" and the title track.

"Miss You" is a melodic rocker with a crisp acoustic touch, "A Kiss Before Dying" soars high on Martin's wailing, and disc closer "Consider Us" offers some surprising piano balladry.

Fans of '90s rock are sure to dig "Into the Sun" for the stroll down memory lane that it is — most everyone else won't even notice it.

Parvez Sharma tries to reconcile Islam and homosexuality

STRUGGLE | "A Jihad for Love" might not be the blockbuster movie of the season, but the new documentary about the plight of gay and lesbian Muslims is enjoying a degree of acclaim as it casts light on a subject often shrouded in mystery.

The film's gay Muslim director, Parvez Sharma, has spent the past year touring festivals.

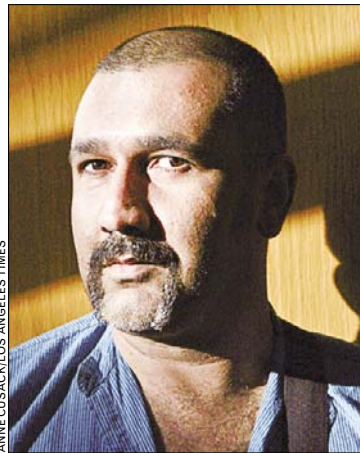

"A Jihad for Love" was the documentary centerpiece last week at Outfest, a gay and lesbian film festival in Los Angeles. It will be shown briefly at a D.C. theater in September.

Filmed surreptitiously in 12 countries over six years, the movie offers a window into the distraught lives of gay and lesbian Muslims as they try to reconcile their sexuality with their devotion to a faith that condemns their way of life.

Sharma, 35, a former journalist in India, said he did not intend to attack Islam but to open a dialogue about a dilemma that forces people to endure quiet desperation.

And therein lies the meaning

ANNE CUSACK/LOS ANGELES TIMES

In his documentary, "A Jihad for Love," Sharma taps into a closeted population.

behind the film's title: Jihad, often equated with holy war, literally means "struggle" or "to strive in the path of God," he said.

"I know there is a deep hunger for this film," said Sharma, who shot the movie, his first feature documentary, in Egypt, Turkey, India, South Africa, France and other countries.

"There are vast differences among Muslims on how to deal with homosexuality," he added. "For the most part, they choose to ignore it as long as it is kept private."

To make "A Jihad for Love," Sharma teamed with producer

Sandi DuBowski, who made the 2001 documentary "Trembling Before G-d," which depicted the struggle of gay and lesbian Orthodox and Hasidic Jews.

Although the two films tackle similar terrain, Sharma's movie was especially difficult to make because of the dangers, including police surveillance and the threat of arrest, which he was able to avoid.

At last week's Outfest screening, several Muslims in the audience — gay and straight — said they were pleased to discover that Sharma portrayed Islam in a respectful manner.

"As a Muslim woman, I found your film incredibly beautiful and spiritually inspiring," Nagwa Ibrahim, 30, a civil rights attorney, told Sharma. "I was very moved by the humanity of your film."

The Art of Persuasion

On 'The Recruiter,' Sgt. Clay Usie sells military service in La.

SIGN 'EM UP | Documentaries, like every storytelling medium, require powerful characters to keep our interest. "The Recruiter" (9 p.m., HBO) has found one.

Wars in Iraq and Afghanistan mean that Army recruiting has never been tougher.

"The Recruiter" follows Sgt. 1st Class Clay Usie as he tries to enlist young soldiers, or, as Usie calls them, "patriots" in the small Cajun town of Houma, La.

Usie becomes a friend, big brother-mentor and drill sergeant to four of his high school recruits before, during and after basic training. The film contrasts Usie's dynamic approach with that of unsuccessful recruiters, particularly one who returned from Iraq shaken by his experience. And their jobs aren't made any easier when news arrives that Houma National Guardsmen were killed in Baghdad. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

OTHER THAN HIS OWN?

Quentin Tarantino discusses movies that he is obsessed with on ELVIS MITCHELL: UNDER THE INFLUENCE (8 p.m., TCM).

OOMPA-LOOMPA LAND

Gene Wilder and Jack Albertson star in the 1971 musical fantasy WILLY WONKA AND THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY (8 p.m., Family).

LOOKIN' SHARP

Shark Week continues with AIR JAWS: SHARKS OF SOUTH AFRICA (8 p.m., Discovery), SURVIVING SHARKS (9 p.m.) and DAY OF THE SHARK (10 p.m.).

ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION

Penn State students major in spooky stuff on PARANORMAL STATE (10 p.m., A&E). Tonight, they counsel victims of a poltergeist bent on throwing religious artifacts around their home.

MAKE HIM STRONGER

On KANYE WEST HOMECOMING SPECIAL (10 p.m., MTV), MTV cameras document a veteran suffering from post-traumatic

D.C.'s Alex Minoff crafts East African tunes in Extra Golden

FOR MORE from Minoff and to listen to Extra Golden's music, visit expressnightout.com

MUSIC | You know a Kenyan is your good friend if you get a shout-out in a song.

D.C. resident, Weird War member and guitarist/singer Alex Minoff gets many, many shout-outs in Extra Golden, the band he formed with fellow guitarist/singer Ian Eagleson and several musicians from Nairobi, the capital of Kenya and the place where benga music was born.

Extra Golden combines the punch of rock 'n' roll and the dancing, syncopated melodies and rhythms of benga, which grew out of Kenyan folk music and southern African pop.

While the lilting Afro-pop sounds of benga underscore everything in Extra Golden, Eagleson and Minoff incorporate their love of American R&B into songs such as "Street Parade" and "Night Runners," the latter of which Minoff said is "about Jajuok. They are these nocturnal creatures — they call them Night Runners — of the Luo folklore."

Meanwhile, "I Miss You" adds slide guitar to make an East African country-rock ballad.

"Most people who hear our music don't understand Luo language," Minoff said. "But you can understand him saying, 'I miss you.' ... But it's a little bit darker than that. He's really imitating a woman saying, 'I miss you,' but he thinks that she's lying and that she's really with another man."

And the timely "Obama" gives praise to the presidential hopeful whose office helped Extra Golden's Kenyan members get visas so the band could reconvene in the United States and make their latest album, last year's "Hera Ma Nono."

Obama's mom and wife get their names called out in the song, too — and so does Minoff, naturally.

topstops

To Dulles, To Dulles

Whether you've seen "The Dark Knight" already or had something better to do (funerals and spaceflight are the only viable excuses), seeing it in IMAX is oh, so worth the drive. "Drive?" you say. Well, there's the catch. The Smithsonian has a big, secret, second Air and Space Museum out by Dulles Airport called the Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Center. And that's where Batman is hiding. You'll be disappointed when you find out there are no snacks allowed in this pristine, new-car smelling theater, but as soon as the movie starts, all you'll be thinking for the next two-plus hours is, "Wow!" Wait till your stomach drops as you soar over Gotham.

→ Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Center, 14390 Air and Space Museum Parkway; various times, various prices; 202-633-1000.

Sweet Elderly Ladies

This week's Screen on the Green offering takes us back to the 1940s, to the days when movie stars looked less like Paul Giamatti and more like Cary Grant, the star of "Arsenic and Old Lace," Frank Capra's 1944 flick. Come down to the Mall to watch a tale of an anti-marriage writer who gets engaged and encounters villainous old ladies who poison people (guess what they use) and a man who believes himself to be Teddy Roosevelt. Grant tells his fiancée: "Insanity runs in my family — it practically gallops." It certainly gallops through this film, but it's neck and neck with hilarity.

→ National Mall, between 4th and 7th streets NW; dusk, free; 877-262-5866.

Just a Song Before They Go

C, S, N (and sometimes Y, but Neil's not along this time): musical dinosaurs or a classic group for every age and era? We're backing Crosby, Stills & Nash partly because, to our amusement, they interact like a bunch of middle-school girls — so much love, and such an awkward, unpleasant way of showing it. These grown men have had more spats than we can count, but they always seem to find their way back. In any event, they've secured an inalienable place in the canon of American Music.

→ Wolf Trap, Filene Center, 1551 Trap Road, Vienna; 8 p.m., $25-$42; 877-965-3872.

Cars

Hummer owners are torn between passion and practical choices

They rumble in on treads called Super Swampers, wearing their hearts on their license plates.

"PLAYDRTY," one behemoth declares. "HUM THIS," dares another.

In a country where life revolves around the car, you are what you drive.

The digital board fronting the Shell station at Exit 100 in Pine Grove, Pa., winks back: "Welcome Hummers!"

In the fading light, though, it's impossible to ignore the sign at the Sunoco across the road: Diesel, $4.97.

You've got to be tough to love a Hummer. The soaring price of fuel is only part of it. Environmentalists, who've always had it in for Hummer lovers, are winning converts. General Motors, which presided over Hummer's transition from a badge of military bravado into a symbol of driveway excess, is looking to sell.

But there's no apologizing or self-pity from Hummer diehards. They're here to goad machines that can top 5 tons over boulders the size of Smart cars, through stewpots of mud obscuring who-knows-what and across obstacle courses of stumps, logs and stones — "like riding a slow-motion roller coaster," one says.

Maybe mega-SUVs are going the way of dinosaurs. Hummer sales have dropped 40 percent this year.

But these beasts and the men and women who love them certainly don't behave like endangered species.

"I told my wife when we bought this, 'Honey, we're investing in steel and rubber,'" says William Welch, a Philadelphia surgeon who owns a jet-black H1. "If it was $10 a gallon," he says, "we'd still be out there."

Cars are much more than transportation to Americans. In a country where life revolves around the car, you are what you drive.

"We eat 20 percent of our meals in cars. We spend hour and hours every week [in cars]," says Leon James, a University of Hawaii professor and expert in the psychology of driving.

But even in American car culture, the Hummer is an outlier, provoking love and hatred so intense it's easy to forget the basic scrappiness that gave birth to the vehicle in the first place.

The Hummer's DNA traces to the Jeep, produced for the Army World War II.

GM's 2002 introduction of the H2 — more polished and sold in considerably larger numbers — netted enemies. One Web site, FUH2.com, drew hundreds of photos from people saluting the Hummer with their middle fingers.

The stepped up culture war found its way to a Washington, D.C., neighborhood last July, when two masked men attacked a parked Hummer with a machete and a baseball bat.

Hummer owners from across the country called Gareth Groves, the owner of the vandalized vehicle, to offer help and even garage space. But they were outnumbered by people who sent hate mail.

After insurance repaired Groves'

WILLIAM WELCH, HUMMER OWNER

The gut-level lure of the machine itself isn't easy to quantify. That is, until Vickie Schultheiss draws a parallel between her Hummer and the highly trained German shepherd whose memory it honors.

"To me, it had to be just as capable and just as brute as Dikas," she says.

truck, fuel prices and house payments made him briefly think about selling.

Even a few hardcore Hummer owners are rethinking.

"It's not a very practical truck," says LaForgia, who plans to sell his H1 to save for a house. ADAM GELLER (AP)

Discussions

The Shark Expert

Scientist and shark expert RYAN JOHNSON was online Friday to discuss the National Geographic TV special “Sharkville,” which explores the world of the great white shark.

I realize that great whites have an innate “cool” factor, but could you give a quick explanation of why we should study them? Clearly, there is a lot of research that still needs to be done on the natural world.

As top predators, sharks can have a major impact right through the marine food web. To ensure that entire marine ecologies stay stable, we have to understand and protect the top of the food chain, which is where sharks and the great white are positioned.

National Geographic's “Sharkville” TV show focuses on great white sharks.

Why do sharks jump out of the water sometimes, as we recently saw this week in a photograph taken of a surfer with a shark jumping out of the water right behind him?

The jumping out of the water that great white sharks do is a consequence of the high-speed ambush attacks they attempt on seals. They typically patrol at around 10 meters in water depth, looking up for silhouettes of seals. When [the sharks spot them], the sharks accelerate as fast as they can vertically to attack the seal, and the momentum carries them out of the water in what we call a breach.

I was wondering if anyone has discovered why punching a shark in the nose sends him away on his back.

I've never heard of that happening, that they fall onto their backs from punching. One thing that a number of people do with great white sharks is lightly stroke its nose and the sharks will follow the hand and do the mouth opening that is often portrayed in photographs. On a few occasions, you can in fact lead the shark over onto its back and it swims away slowly, slightly disoriented.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not enjoy following the rules that have only recently been set down, but already you are realizing how they are doing you good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your leadership qualities may be given a chance to shine brightly. Concentrate on those decisions that come too easily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A split-second decision needn't be something you regret later; do your best to be prepared for anything that might arise unexpectedly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Do what you can to control your more impulsive and inappropriate desires. Some things are best kept under wraps at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Explore alternative methods to achieve the same desired ends. It may be that routine and familiar techniques aren't enough at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep your personal judgments to yourself;

there is a time and a place, but now is neither. Do what you can to get along with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The experts are likely to make a great deal of sense when it comes to one of your own personal problems — believe it or not.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may have to stop what you are doing and assess your progress before you had expected. You'll be back on track in no time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your enthusiasm, as always, will be catching — and it is likely that others will actually be depending on you to increase their involvement.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An unexpected encounter can benefit you in a way that you had never anticipated, but you may be in danger of getting too much of a good thing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Concentrate on ownership issues. Focus, too, on those things that can help you increase the rate of progress at home and at work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may have trouble with someone in or around the home without knowing exactly why — and compatibility may not be the issue.

President Johnson announced the addition of troops in South Vietnam in 1965.

Today in History

1821 Peru declares its independence from Spain.

1914 World War I begins as Austria-Hungary declares war on Serbia.

1928 The Olympic games open in Amsterdam.

1945 A U.S. Army bomber crashes into the 79th floor of New York's Empire State Building, killing 14 people.

1965 President Johnson announces he is increasing the number of American troops in South Vietnam from 75,000 to 125,000 "almost immediately."

1977 Roy Wilkins turns over leadership of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to Benjamin L. Hooks.

2002 Nine coal miners trapped in the flooded Quecreek Mine in Somerset, Pa., are rescued after 77 hours underground.

"Indiana Jones" star Shia LaBeouf was arrested on suspicion of drunken driving Sunday after an early morning wreck. "It was apparent to officers that LaBeouf was intoxicated, and he was placed under arrest," police said. LaBeouf was booked and then released for misdemeanor DUI. The actor was being treated for injuries to his left hand and for a minor head injury. (AP)

TOM CRUISE: 'But, Halle, You Can Sell the Pictures for Money'

Halle Berry says a photographer trespassed onto her property. The actress was upset when pictures of her holding 4-month-old Nahla Ariela Aubry showed up on the Internet and in two celebrity magazines. Her attorney said a criminal complaint has been filed. Berry said she will never sell pictures of her children. "I know that choosing this career has made me a public figure, but my baby has made no such choice, and ... I will keep her out of the public eye." (AP)

Suri Cruise is purportedly jealous of Nahla.

Chick Breathes Sigh of Relief, Reattaches 'No Boys Allowed' Sign to Clubhouse

Martie Maguire of the Dixie Chicks and her husband, Gareth, have welcomed another addition to their all-girl brood: daughter Harper Rosie Maguire. The baby was born Friday morning in Austin, Texas. The couple have twin daughters. "Martie is doing very well, and Gareth and the family are over the moon," the band said in a statement. (AP)

Wethinks He Shouldst Stick To That Show He Doth Host

"The Price Is Right" host Drew Carey showcased his Shakespearean side in a concert appearance with the Cleveland Orchestra. The Ohio native says he was "very, very excited" to be narrating "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Saturday night performance. (AP)

"'Twas nearly $8 and 12 cents," he says.
